REAL STORIES

There is an ancient saying that the best stories are those of real, and not "reel" life. Like snake and sea yarns, this seems the time of the year they make their appearance.

JUDGE TELLS ONE

Judge Thomas D. Johnston fathered one the other day that deserves a lasting place in the archives of fame. He was busily engaged in making preparation for the new grand jury, selected yesterday and chanced to remark that the original panel of 31 had dwindled to 23, which reminded him of the excuses to which he had listened during his service on the bench that people advanced when they would be unable to serve as trial and grand jurors. Many unique reasons have been advanced but of them all the one given by a lady who called him up in great perturbation of spirit not long ago, he candidly believes, is entitled to the pennant, or whatever is given in such cases.

"Judge" she excitedly exclaimed over the phone, "I have been subpoenaed to serve as a trial juror in a case today and I called you up to say that it is impossible for me to serve."

"That is too bad," replied the jurist in his most urbane manner, thinking, of course, that nothing less than a death in the family or some other equally serious calamity had befallen the good lady. "But what is the reason," inquired the judge.

"My card club meets this afternoon, and it will be just impossible for me to be in court," she replied.

"Madam, you attend your card party and I can assure you that you will never have to ask to be excused again."

Perhaps your conclusion is that the lady's face was red after that stinging retort, but to the contrary she sweetly thanked his honor, and

NEW YORK, July 26.—UP —The German flag was torn from its mast at the bow of the German-Lloyd liner Bremen tonight by a group of alleged Communists and thrown into the Hudson river as 1500 demonstrators shouted and fought police at the pier.

A daring band of the milling protestants against recent anti-Jewish acts of the German government, slipped aboard the luxury liner despits extreme police vigilance and fought a hand-to-hand battle with police and Bremen sailors as they gained the bow and slashed the halyards.

Another condition of the seven-year-probation was that Wayne return to his home State of Colorado upon being released from jail. Miss Palmer charged Wayne induced her to come to his apartment to see his paintings, disrobed her, and laid a riding quirt across her shoulders.

TWO GUILTY IN STOCKTON VOTE FRAUD

STOCKTON, July 26—UP—Clarence Kennedy, 35, and Lester Williams, 42, today were convicted on four counts involving alteration of ballots in the election of Sheriff Harvey M. O'Dell last November 6.

The alleged alteration of ballots took place during a recount ordered in the election. Both men, to be sentenced next Wednesday by Judge Marion G. Woodward, face prison terms of one to five years on each count.

WON VICTORY

O'Dell won the November 6 election by a scant majority over William H. Riecks, former sheriff. A recount was demanded, and when the ballots were retabulated Riecks was found to have gained several hundred votes. Judge J. J. Trabucco awarded the election to O'Dell, commenting that there was evidence of ballot tampering in Rieck's sudden and considerable gain.

Later C. C. Melton confessed to police that Kennedy and Williams had obtained his cooperation in altering ballots. He was jailed after pleading guilty to charges contained in a county grand jury indictment.

CHARGES MADE

Kennedy, member of a prominent Stockton family, formerly was a deputy sheriff under Riecks, as was Williams.

The men were charged with removing ballots from custody of the county clerk, altering ballots, and conspiracy to commit both acts.

Lumber Strike In Northwest Is Nearing End

SEATTLE, July 26.—UP—Lumber production was recovering slowly in Northwest sawmills tonight as union employes and operators reached bases for settlement of the strike that started May 6.

Twelve Washington mills, nine in the Puget Sound area, went into production the week ending July 20, boosting production 10,000,000 feet over the preceding week, the West Coast Lumberman's Association reported.

The strike was called off in Olympia today when Sawmill & Timber Workers Union men voted 759 to 49 to return to work.

Employes will receive a minimum of 50 cents an hour for a 40-hour week, an advance of 7½ cents an hour, and a pledge from employers of non-discrimination against workers because of union affiliation. All mills will be running at capacity Monday, it was predicted.

It was estimated that only about 8,000 workmen, mostly in Grays Harbor, remain idle due to the strike, which at its peak called 35,000 men from their jobs.

151 CRIMINALS TO BE OUSTED

WASHINGTON, July 26.—UP—The biggest wholesale deportation of alien criminals in United States history was ordered today by President Roosevelt.

He directed that 151 persons, including murderers, mail robbers, confidence men and white slavers from virtually every civilized country be shipped in irons back to the lands of their birth.

The order affects 150 men and one woman now serving terms ranging from a year and a day to life in prisons.

"There is no good reason why these aliens should be incarcerated longer at public expense," the Justice Department said in announcing the President's action.

BOY UNMOVED BY EVIDENCE

PEORIA, Ill., July 26—UP—Gerald Thompson showed his steel nerves today.

The youth whose defense against a charge of murdering auburn haired Mildred Hallmark, 19-year-old cafe hostess, is expected to be that he is a sexual monomaniac, driven by an irrestible urge to crimes of passion, quivered not a muscle as Mildred's bloody garments, which he stripped from her body in ravishing her, were dangled before him by State's Attorney Edwin V. Champion.

He set unmoved through the tearful recital of Mildred's sister, Ruby who identified the clothing—the red-flecked dress, the crimson-smeared underwear, the perky white hat, the white shoes and sheer stockings.

POWDER IS IDENTIFIED AS STOLEN

MODESTO, July 26—UP—Defense forces in the trial of eight alleged dynamite plotters today scored their first major victory when three important State witnesses repudiated portions of their testimony.

Defense Attorney Harold Faulkner, doggedly cross-questioning the witnesses, first obtained admissions from George Brazelton and a woman he had said was his wife that they were not married.

NOT MARRIED

Brazelton and the woman, posing as man and wife, had told the jury in the trial previously that John Rogers and Alfonso Boyle, two of the defendants, had obtained dynamite for the alleged plot and had taken it to the Brazelton home in San Francisco. Brazelton had testified the plot was conceived in his home, although he refused to have any part in it.

Roy Schwartz, a Standard Oil Company detective, also admitted to Faulkner that a piece of rubber hose found in possession of one of the defendants was not loaded with shot as he previously had testified.

CASE CONTINUED

District Attorney Leslie A. Cleary, seeking to offset the defense gains, introduced testimony by Dr. Sherman Green to substantiate statements of Marin county quarry workers that dynamite and powder found on the defendants was the same as that used at the quarry.

Judge Roy B. Maxey continued the case until tomorrow.

Big Increase In Delinquent Tax Property Seen

MARTINEZ, July 26—A sharp increase in delinquent taxes in Contra Costa county is indicated in the rise of deeds made over to the state on delinquent tax property, 1,231 deeds having been made over this year in contrast to only 710 last year, while taxes are delinquent on approximately 18,500 pieces of property for 1934-35.

The 1,231 deeds to the state this year were on property sold in 1929 and unredeemed in the ensuing five years. Most of the property involved consists of town or city lots, a large number of them in the west end of the county, some with improvements.

Although it is expected that some of the 18,500 delinquent tax properties of 1934-35 will be redeemed within the next five years, nearly that large a number is expected to be ceded to the State.

MUSSOLINI TURNS DOWN PEACE PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 26—UP—President Roosevelt, in behalf of the Nation, washed his hands today of the Italian-Ethiopian controversy.

Their troubles, he said at his press conference, are not matters of concern to the United States.

Tilting back in his chair, Mr. Roosevelt said thoughtfully that Americans, naturally, favored world peace, that and the personal feelings that citizens may have in the Italian-Ethiopian controversy, are the only possible way in which this Nation is interested, he added.

Mr. Roosevelt conceded that Americans do have personal feelings in such matters and he observed that you cannot stop them by government decree.

PEACE PLAN REJECTED

LONDON, July 26—UP—New British proposals for settling the Italo-Ethiopian conflict were rejected by Premier Benito Mussolini tonight.

For the second time Il Duce turned his back on offers of British good offices to avert war in East Africa when he rejected suggestions that he restrict his claims on Ethiopia to economic and commercial demands.

CALCUTTA, India, July 26—UP—Mahatma Gandhi, who organized a British ambulance corps for service in the Boer war, today called upon his people, who called him "saviour," to aid Ethiopia.

The Mahatma's appeal for funds to finance an Indian Red Cross unit in Ethiopia, came while feeling ran high throughout the country because of Mussolini's outburst against the dark races.

Indians resented Il Duce's statements that whites must be supreme in Africa. They were aroused by his charges that the yellows and the blacks are uniting against white supremacy.

Bank Bill Is Passed By Senate

WASHINGTON, July 26—UP—The Senate passed the omnibus banking bill today and sent it to the House for what may be a long and angry conference.

Representing the conservative financial views of Senator Carter Glass, Democrat, Virginia, 77-year-old monetary authority, the Senate bill differs greatly from the one passed by the House.

NO RECORD VOTE

There was no record vote.

Before the Senate approved the bill it defeated an amendment, offered by Senator Gerald P. Nye, R., North Dakota, to create a "people's central bank." That is the plan sponsored by Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, who has had a compelling voice in much legislation here. The Senate crushed him today, for the Central Bank proposal gained only 10 votes.

PROVISIONS TOLD

The House bill seeks to take away from the banks much of the control they have over monetary policies and hand that power to the Federal Government. Glass' bill al

Two other guns and 500 rounds of ammunition were found in a sack the Chinese carried under his coat, police said.

WOMAN WILL FILE SUIT IN ARREST

PITTSBURG, July 26.—Charges of burglary against Mrs. Lillian Barton Ferrando, central figure in a new investigation into the slaying of her husband, Antonio Ferrando, local commission merchant early last March, were dismissed when the woman appeared before Justice of the Peace Wade Moore this afternoon.

The dismissal was made on the motion of District Attorney Francis P. Healey who appeared in court for the prosecution.

TRIAL DEMANDED

James F. Hoey, attorney for the woman, immediately demanded that a trial be held for the woman, declaring that she had been submitted to tests by lie detectors, grillings by deputy sheriffs and officers and charging that the arrest was a "frame up."

Hoey demanded that the woman be placed on trial, and that all evidence against her be produced immediately.

SUIT IS PLANNED

However, Judge Moore declared that since there was a lack of evidence and since the complaining witness, Joseph Lombardo, local shoemaker, failed to appear in court, the case was taken off the docket.

Hoey immediately announced that he plans to file suit against Lombardo, charging malicious prosecution and false arrest. The attorney for the woman was ex-

THREE KILLED IN OIL BLAZE

BILLINGS, Mont., July 26—UP—Three persons were dead and at least four were injured in a fire that threatened destruction of the Yale Oil Company refinery here tonight.

Firemen battled furiously to gain control over the flames and prevent complete destruction of the plant.

Since the refinery is outside the city limits, however, they had gained little headway tonight. Water pressure was too low to be of much aid. Ralph McDermott, 18, was killed, his body badly burned. Two other bodies were located in the fiery area, but rescuers were unable to reach them because of the heat.

TACOMA, Wash., July 26—UP —A group of Seattle Sea Scouts in the cruiser Sea Vulture, with R. A. Palmer as master, was the first boat to leave the starting line this afternoon in the 17-mile, 24-hour "logged" race to Nanaimo, B. C.

The U. S. S. Breckenridge gave the starting signal for the sea venture at 1:19 P. M. and the trim cruiser sped out of Tacoma waterway on its tortuous course through Puget Sound to the Gulf of Georgia.

The weather was overcast but warm, and a good breeze was blowing across the treacherous currents that slip around Rocky Islands.

Several thousand persons watched the start. Other cruisers left the starting mark according to handicaps determined by their predicted logs. Ability of the skipper in navigation will determine the winner. An observer aboard each cruiser will log the boat as it reaches six control points. Judges will compare the predicted logs with the observers' logs for accuracy.

U. S. SPENDS $2 FOR EVERY $1 IT COLLECTS

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 26. — New Deal financial operations since President Roosevelt took office less than 29 months ago involve nearly $40,000,000,000, Treasury reports showed today.

New borrowing and refunding of previous borrowings into new issues accounted for $32,060,646,422, while total Government revenues were nearly $8,000,000,000.

RECORD BROKEN

Since Mar. 4, 1933, the Government's financial operations have neared the war-time financing record. In the past 28½ months securities valued at $32,060,646,422 have either been sold to the public or exchanged for other obligations.

Partly offsetting these flotations the Treasury has retired securities valued at $23,752,671,261, leaving a net increase of $8,307,975,161 in the Government's debt.

ALL TIME PEAK

This gain in Government obligations has carried its public debt to an all time record peak of $29,216,326,025 from $20,937,350,864 on February 28, 1933, shortly before inauguration of the New Deal.

The $8,307,975,161 increase in Government borrowings was necessitated by the Federal spending program, which has taken more than $2 for every $1 the Treasury collected in revenue.

SPENDS BILLIONS

A summary of Treasury ledgers shows the New Deal has spent $16,900,000,000. Of this $7,900,000,000 was supplied by Government revenues and the remainder from $8,307,975,161 new borrowings.

Refunding operations involved exchange of high interest bearing war securities for low coupon bonds. An unwieldy short term debt structure built up in 1931 and 1932 was refunded into long-term bonds.

INTEREST SAVED

Savings in interest estimated at more than $100,000,000 have been effected by the Treasury through refunding of First and Fourth Liberty Loan issues with lower interest bearing securities.

On June 30, 1935, the average annual interest rate on Government borrowings was 2.715 per cent compared with 3.18 per cent a year ago and more than 4 per cent in the early 1920s. The interest cost on present borrowings is estimated at $850,000,000, compared with more than a billion dollars shortly after the war, when borrowings were nearly $4,000,000,000 less than now.

Murder Hinted In Man's Death

[illegible], July 26—UP—The body of Clarence Rice, 31, private in the U. S. Marine Corps, was found a few feet off the Bayshore Highway today.

Santa Clara county authorities are seeking a possible hit-run driver whom they believed killed Rice, dragged his body to the side of the road, and disappeared.

The body was found by George Gillen, San Francisco salesman. A trail of blood was visible along the pavement, indicating, police said, Rice's body had been dragged 100 feet or more on an automobile bumper or fender before it was flung to the pavement.

Gillen told police that a short time before he saw Rice's body, he passed a truck with only one headlight. Fragments of glass were found at the scene of Rice's death, indicating the impact may have broken a headlight of the vehicle involved.

Cigar Box Center Of Congressional Probe Of Power Lobbyists

WASHINGTON, July 26—UP—Representative Nat Patton, Texas Democrat, told the Senate lobby committee today that the mysterious cigar box carried out of the hotel room of a power official contained nickel cigars "and that's the honest to God truth."

But a conflicting story by Eugene V. Sellers, NRA employe and Patton's friend left the committee confused. Sellers said he lifted the box, that it was smaller than a cigar box, and that it was made of pasteboard.

INCIDENT NOT CLOSED

Chairman Hugo Black, Democrat, Alabama, after hearing testimony from Patton and Sellers, indicated that the incident was not yet closed.

The committee recessed for the week end after summoning H. C. Hopson, J. I. Mange and other high officials of the Associated Gas & Electric Company to appear Monday. Mange is reported to be in Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. The committee investigators have been unable to locate Hopson.

STORIES FAIL TO AGREE

The stories told by Patton and Sellers agree only on one point—that Patton went to the room of John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power & Light Company a few days before the House vote on the utilities bill, and that he left carrying a box.

Sellers testified he accompanied Patton and fixed the date on the Sunday before the House utility bill "death sentence" vote was cast. Patton denied this and said he was at Annapolis, Md., that day with his family.

CIGARS REMOVED

Patton testified that only one or two cigars had been removed from the box. Sellers said the box was light and that when he lifted it "something moved." Sellers testified that he and Patton and Patton's nephew, Norris Snook of Houston, Tex., went to a restaurant after leaving the hotel. Patton denied it.

Sellers asserted that on the day after the cigar box was taken out of the hotel, Patton had lunch with him and flashed a new "baby bond" which he said he had just purchased. Patton at first denied he had shown Sellers the bond but later said "I might have done so."

PURCHASED BONDS

That afternoon in Sellers' room, Sellers said Shook told him:

"I don't think it was cigars in the box. Uncle bought a bond and it wasn't pay day."

The Texas Democrat said freely that during May and April he had purchased $3,000 worth of government bonds, which he said he paid for out of his salary and Congressional mileage. He testified he brought only $600 when he came to Congress from Texas in January and had not earned outside fees.

IS QUESTIONED

He was questioned closely about the purchase of the bonds.

"We want to give you the benefit of all doubt," said Senator Ernest Gibson, Republican, Vermont, "but the committee is puzzled on how a man can buy $3,000 worth of bonds out of his salary for four months."

He brought out that during the first four months, Patton's salary was $3,161.

"I can refer you only to the records at the office of the sergeant-at-arms where my checks were cashed to pay for the bonds," Patton replied.

Father Stabbed By Son In Row

SUNNYVALE, July 26—UP—Frank Vierra, 18 year old ranch youth, today stabbed his father, Joseph Vierra, 50, attempted to stab his sister, Mary, 16, and then fled.

The sister told authorities the stabbing followed a week of argument between father and son over the latter's refusal to help in harvesting fruit on the Vierra ranch.

At San Jose hospital, physicians said Vierra had a punctured lung. He was expected to recover. The girl was uninjured.

ANTI-JEWISH LEADER GIVEN POST BY NAZIS

MUNICH, Germany, July 26—UP—Julius Streicher, leading anti Semitist and publisher of the newspaper Der Stuermer, tonight said he expected soon to be appointed to an official post, making him Number One Jew-baiter of Germany.

In a 4½ hours speech before the National Congress of School Teachers, Streicher made what was regarded as his nomination of himself for the job of national anti-Semite leader.

Streicher's speech left little doubt that near future would bring a radical sharpening of the anti-Semitic campaign throughout Germany.

"The Reich problem is the key to world history," he said.

"If the Aryan world is to be saved then it will be by German folk. Regard the dangers of mixed blood, keep your blood pure.

"The time must come when every German girl who has anything to do with a Jew can be publicly pilloried."

Streicher dealt at length with the church attitude toward Jews.

"The church's present actions with regard to the Reich problem are tantamount to simple betrayal of German folk," he said.

He referred to the former German Crown Prince Rupprecht as a princeling who no longer belongs to the German folk.

Rupprecht is a strong Catholic and an open opponent of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's centralization program.

At the beginning Streicher's speech was received coolly but later the teachers applauded frequently. At the finish they were on their feet, cheering wildly.

Nine Held In Theft Of Grain

MARTINEZ, July 26.—The ninth suspect in a series of grain robberies in Contra Costa, San Joaquin and Alameda counties was lodged in the county jail tonight when officers arrested Floyd Pope, 22, of Brentwood.

In the county jail here are Pope, Andrew Silvis, 18, of Brentwood, Tyler Acrey, 20, of Byron and Frank Oliviera, 17, also of Byron. Five others, alleged members of the gang, were arrested and jailed at Stockton.

According to sheriff's officers, the gang stole some 800 bags of grain and sold them to a grain man at Gustine, San Joaquin county, for 50 cents a bag.

The gang, police say, would take a truck, go to a grain field after threshing had been completed, and steal from 50 to 100 bags of grain and would then drive away.

Davis expected to confer with Mooney at San Quentin prison and then interview Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hatcher at Woodland, Cal. The Hatchers have asserted that Frank C. Oxman, now dead, was not in San Francisco at the time he contended he saw Mooney and Warren K. Billings near the scene of the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing here.

Oxman's testimony was important in giving the State a conviction of Mooney and Billings.

DOUBLE BILL FOR PATRONS OF FOX SUNDAY

Richard Dix in "The Arizonian" hailed as greater triumph than Dix's "Cimmarron" plus Warner Brothers comedy classic, "Don't Bet On Blondes" are the two new features coming to the Fox theater tomorrow.

"The Arizonian" tells a thrilling chapter in the surge of Empire toward the setting sun. Dix has the role of a two-fisted peace-maker blazing the trail of justice. As in "Cimarron" Dix is an unflinching supporter of law and order. Visiting graft-ridden Silver City, a mushroom town of the early West, he accepts the post of marshal and campaigns against outlawry. He has an ordinance passed which disarms the town. He arrests a fellow officer's murderer single handed. He antagonizes the sheriff, a crooked authority. He rebuffs the town judge, the sheriff's tool.

An action crammed climax brings Dix to battle with the foe. The blazing ruins of the county prison forms a barricade for the marshal's operatives, who are out-numbered two to one.

The blond charmer of "The Informer," Margot Grahame, is a prominent figure in "The Arizonian," involved in a romance with Dix and his brother Foster, Louis Calhern and Farrell MacDonald.

Six of Hollywood's comedy stars combine their talents in what is reported to be the merriest love battle of the century, "Don't Bet on Blondes." With a background of major sporting events, it casts Warren William as an ex-bookie, who opens an insurance company, advertising that he will insure anyone against anything.

The other five stars who help to enliven the proceedings are Guy Kibbee, Claire Dodd, Hobart Cavanaugh, William Gargan and Vince Barnett.

TWO HITS TODAY

Edmund Lowe in "Black Sheep" and Bette Davis in "The Girl From 10th Avenue" are the two features playing at the Fox for the last times today.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, July 26—UP—If a slow start means a fast finish, the next picture of the irrepressible Marx brothers should sound like Armageddon.

The trio—Groucho, Harpo and Chico—started on it many months ago, but abandoned production to take a boiled-down version on the road and preview it to vaudeville houses in the West. Gags were revised, enlarged or even discarded entirely before the three madcaps of mirth felt satisfied they had a show that could be put on celluloid.

The picture, "A Night at the Opera," is in production under Irving Jones and Kitty Carlisle is supplying the romantic interest.

No "tailored" hair for Louise Rainer, petite foreign actress. She believes in leaving hats off and letting the hair blow where it may.

"If allowed to blow about as it pleases," she says, "it adds a certain charm and softness to the face. Nor do I care for hats. Hats aren't natural. Nature meant our hair to have the benefit of sun and rain and wind. I only wear a hat when I am forced to."

Miss Ranier is famous in Europe for the beauty of her hair.

Navy Is Blamed For Macon Loss

AKRON, O., July 26—UP—"Because the United States Navy department was obsessed with the fear of having the Macon dirigible too heavy, it last the entire ship," Professor R. V. DeForrest, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology charged today, it was reported.

Professor DeForrest, attending an institute on lighter than air crafts, with other notable scientists and aircraft engineers, vindicated the Goodyear-Zepplin corporation and laid the blame for the costly crash at the door of the Navy department, it was understood.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

WASHINGTON, July 26— With war increasingly certain in Europe, the State and Navy Departments are adroitly sabotaging Senate bills for keeping the country out of war or for eliminating war profits should we get in.

The inside story is amazing. It indicates that the State Department is content to drift, in the same blind and somnolent manner it did in 1915 and 1916, into the throes of war.

Weeks ago the Senate Munitions Committee introduced a Neutrality Act calculated to remove the chief irritant which dragged the United States into past wars—the protection of American commerce.

The heart of this Act is that war commerce be put on a "cash and carry" basis. In other words, belligerents trading with the United States would have to take delivery of their goods at their own risk.

The danger of American vessels being seized on the high seas was to be avoided.

This was what brought the United States into the War of 1812, into the World War, and nearly brought Great Britain into the Civil war on the side of the Confederacy.

HULL GRILLED

Secretary of State Hull, called before a secret session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was polite but evasive. He cautioned delay. His State Department experts, he said, had been studying this question for years. He wanted the Senators to meet with these experts.

Queried Senator Gerald Nye, author of the Neutrality Act:

"Is it the State Department's idea to revert to its original plan of deciding upon the aggressor nation, then embargoing shipments to the aggressor?"

"No," replied Mr. Hull, after some hesitation.

"I want to tell you, Mr. Secretary," boomed Senator Borah, "that if you have any such idea you might as well forget about it, because you will never get anywhere with it in the United States Senate."

Following which a sub-committee was appointed to meet with State Department experts to find a compromise solution.

RESCUER BARUCH

Though the State Department will not admit it publicly, actually it is vigorously opposed to the Neutrality Act; even went to the extent of getting the aid of Bernard Baruch to throw cold water on it before the President.

Private opinion within the State Department is that terrific political repercussions would result if the United States declined to ship to belligerents during the next war. Southern warehouses would be loaded with cotton. Northwest elevators would be jammed with wheat. Serious depression would result.

Senators pushing the Neutrality Act, however, claim that there is no selling goods to Europe if we are not to be paid for them; that the goods sold during the last war still are unpaid for.

Also they point out that one great factor causing our entrance into the World War was the propaganda of international bankers who desired to collect their credits to Europe for war goods. The Munitions Committee is now investigating the propaganda of J. P. Morgan and the Guaranty Trust. Senators promise startling revelations.

WAR PROFITS

Another war bill stymied in the Senate is that aimed to take the profits out of war. This has the support of the President, but apparently not of the conservative Senate Finance Committee. For weeks it has been held up in a sub-committee headed by Senator Barkley of Kentucky.

Finally the forthright Mr. Nye, impatient, went to the White House and demanded the President's help in securing Senate ratification.

Next day Senator Barkley resigned the committee chairmanship, pleading "too busy" and [illegible], slow-moving Senator Connally of Texas was invited in his place. So far he has shown no more punch than his predecessor.

NAVAL PROFITS

A final war bill, drafted by the Nye Munitions Committee, is held up in the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. It is aimed to prevent exorbitant profits by private shipyards.

It is delayed by Senator Park Trammell of Florida. Once a bitter complainant against the Navy, Trammell now is playing the Navy's game and has substituted the innocuous Vinson Bill for the drastic anti-Naval Profits treaty.

Meanwhile, Munitions Committee members see the Congressional session drawing to a close with their bills still languishing in committee.

War, they claim, probably will break before Congress can convene again. Then it may be too late to enact neutrality laws.

INVESTIGATORS

Officials of J. P. Morgan and the Guaranty Trust are worried about the investigators of the Senate Munitions Committee. Recently they addressed an inquiry to the head investigator, stating that they did not want irresponsible persons going through their files, especially anyone who contemplated writing books.

They asked: "Could you not provide us with certificates of good character for all of your investigators?"

The request was relayed to Washington. Then Steve Raushenbush, right arm of the committee, replied:

"Tell J. P. Morgan and the Guaranty Trust that I will give our investigators certificates of good character. But in return I want the Morgan and Guaranty officials to give us similar certificates.

"And if we find that any of the Morgan partners have defects in their records," Steve continued, "they should eliminate themselves."

So far he has had no reply.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, July 26—The annulment of Clendenin Ryan's marriage to the Austrian Countess Marie von Wurmbrand Stuppach gave New York blue-bloods plenty to talk about.

Judge Cotillo upheld the contention that the Countess's parents had schemed to entrap the young heir to the Ryan millions and that love had no part in the bargain. Although court action has never before been so outspoken in such cases, New York millionaires have got themselves into similar scrapes many times before.

Dowagers still recall the brilliant marriage of Anna Gould and the Count Boni de Castellane. In the background of that international alliance, it seems, was a little tailor with a one-track mind. The Count owed the tailor a large bill which the fellow was bent on collecting. The American heiress was the solution.

Anna Gould didn't maintain the partnership for long, however. She spent $5,000,000 restoring the chateau of the de Castellane family and settling the various social puzzles in which the Count had managed to involve himself.

By that time the partnership had turned into a solo act and the Gould heiress decided to quit.

TEARS: Another celebrated union between a rich American girl and a titled foreigner was the marriage of Consuelo Vanderbilt—now Mrs. Jacques Balsan—to the Duke of Marlborough. In that particular diplomatic entanglement Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the girl's mother, played the role of assiduous Cupid. The wedding was held in Newport, and witnesses still recall the tears of the bride as she was led to the altar.

Barbara Hutton, the latest of the title-hunting Americans, at least seems to walk the bridal path willingly each time. If there were tears when she married Count Haugwitz-Reventlow a few months ago, they must have been the undried ones shed after divorcing Prince Mdivani a few hours before.

NO DOUBT: The Gilbert and Sullivan operettas are back in town again and now the witted residents have something to live for.

The Civic Light Opera company, with favorite stars like Frank Moulan, William Danforth, Herbert Waterous, Vera Ross and Vivian Hart, has returned for a summer season of eight weeks. From the little-used Adelphi theater on West 54th Street the famous songs come rollicking out with undiminished sparkle and joy. "The Pirates of Penzance" is the current show, and next week comes the "Yeomen of the Guard," and for the rest of the run other favorites will rotate on the list.

It is a remarkable tribute to the unending appeal of these immortal operas that even on the most stultifying of evenings New Yorkers turn out in droves for the Gilbert and Sullivan performances.

The boys had something.

TROUPER: Frank Moulan is one of my favorite Gilbertian comedians, and I was a bit disheartened when the dramatic critics greeted his appearance in "The Mikado" with something closely resembling jeers and reprimands. The newspaper boys, it seemed, didn't like the way Mr. Moulan capered and hopped about the stage. They thought he was over-clowning his part and exaggerating the original business generally.

When I arrived for the show I found Mr. Moulan was indeed indulging in strange movements on the stage. But he was far from over-clowning. He had fallen on a flight of stairs some weeks before, and was playing the current run with a brace on his back!

A trouper will do almost anything to keep the show going, but this bit of courage on the part of Moulan, who is well into his sixties, is something of a record by itself.

FEAR LYNCHING AS FATHER IS HELD IN JAIL

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 26.—UP—John Hull, 31-year old FERA worker, today was rushed to the State penitentiary at Canon City for safekeeping, after he had confessed an attempt to murder his own son, Corwin, 11, in an effort to collect a $1,000 insurance policy on the boy's life.

Hull was arrested as he stood at the bedside of his son, who was near death in a local hospital. Earlier the father had reported to police that the youth was beaten by holdup men who robbed the elder Hull of $2 as he walked along a Colorado Springs street.

Police said Hull's story of the alleged holdup failed to hold together under questioning, and they began to suspect that the father was guilty of the attack.

Hull confessed, after only brief questioning this afternoon, that he had beaten the boy with a piece of flooring taken from his home.

He said that, after the boy became unconscious, he feared he would be found responsible for him, and so struck himself on the head with the piece of board, inflicting injuries which he had previously said resulted from the holdup.

As police questioned Hull in city jail, word of his confession spread swiftly through this resort town, and several reports reached authorities that a mob was forming, planning to lynch the father.

At once, Hull was rushed thru a rear door of the jail, and in an automobile was started for the Canon City penitentiary under heavy guard.

CHAPTER XXXI

LAVONNE found Virginia sitting at her desk. "I—I just had a telephone call. I guess it was intended for you."

Virginia turned slowly, her face flushing.

"From Bruce Tregg?" she asked.

"I thought it was his voice."

"What did he say?" Virginia made quick nervous marks on a scratch pad. She did not look at Lavonne.

"Everything is all right. Come at nine. Brevo Hotel Room 916 Virginia . . . ?"

"I suppose I'll have to tell you," Virginia said reluctantly, "although I didn't want anyone to know." She opened a drawer of her desk and took out the letter from Polly. "Read that."

Lavonne read and looked at Virginia incredulously. "And you are . . . ?"

"Going there tonight to try and get the money and bonds to return to the bank. I've make Bruce think I'm going to run away with him. Celeste is away and . . ."

"Virginia, you can't do this! You'll get yourself involved in you don't know what!"

"Janice knows about it," Virginia continued. "She is going to take the money back home by plane. Everything is arranged."

"But Virginia, I don't want you to do this—please!"

"I've got to try, Lavonne," Virginia sighed. "It's the only thing to do."

LAVONNE went slowly back to her desk. She looked about for Kirk. She went into his office, but he wasn't there. She stood by the window a second, looking out. She was worried.

Then, two figures crossing the street below caught her eye. Familiar figures. Why, it was Kirk and Fay Atkins! Lavonne watched, unbelieving, until they were swallowed up in the crowd.

Dixie came in just then. "What's the matter, Lavonne? You look as though ghosts were walking over your grave."

"Nothing—nothing is the matter. Dixie, do you mind if I stay in town with you tonight?"

"What—no date!" Dixie held up her hands in mock surprise.

"No. But I'll have to leave about nine for awhile and—and I can't tell you where I'm going."

"Aha, mystery! But anything you say goes. Come on, let's go eat."

VIRGINIA stayed in the office. She couldn't eat dinner. She was too nervous and worried. At eight-thirty, she left. She didn't notice Paul Thornton standing in the lobby. But he saw her and, after a curious glance, followed her out of the building.

The Brevo Hotel was only a few blocks away Virginia walked rapidly. Paul followed at a distance. When she went into the hotel he stopped, staring after her. The Treggs were staying there he knew but Celeste had said she was going out of town. Then what—surely Virginia had not been foolish enough to make a date with Bruce Tregg. But a girl in love will do foolish things. He frowned.

Slowly he entered the hotel but Virginia was not in sight.

"Yes," the elevator starter told him, "a girl in a red hat just went up."

"Floor nine," added one of the operators. "Would the gentleman like to go up?"

Paul shook his head and moved back into the lobby. He found an inconspicuous seat, and sat down to wait. The ninth floor—that was where the Tregg suite was.

AT nine-thirty he rose heavily, moving like a tired old man, and started to leave. No use to wait longer. But he couldn't believe—he couldn't—not Virginia.

As he stepped out the door on to the street, he met Kirk Donnelly—a Kirk with white, set face and blazing eyes.

"Why, Donnelly! What's the matter?" He shook his arm.

A girl in Kirk's car just in front of the hotel spoke up. It was Fay Atkins.

"I told him not to come. He'll—he'll kill somebody! Mr. Thornton, don't let him go up there! Oh, I shouldn't have told him! I shouldn't!" Fay began to sob.

Paul firmly propelled Kirk over to the car.

"Now tell me what this is all about," he commanded. "Perhaps I can do something to . . ."

"It's Lavonne," Kirk panted. "She's—she's in that hotel now—in some man's room. I thought I didn't care but—but—I'll beat that fellow up—"

"Just a minute now, Donnelly." Paul's calm tone had effect. "Let me see about this. Tell me about it."

"I'LL tell you," Fay interposed. "Lavonne got a telephone call to meet a fellow here in Room 916 and . . ."

"Room 916!" Paul felt as though a load had been lifted from his back. The Treggs' suite! If Lavonne was with Virginia, everything was all right. Oh, he had been foolish to doubt her!

"Listen, Donnelly, I'm sure everything is all right. Virginia is with Lavonne. But I'll go up and get her myself. Come back in the lobby and wait for me."

"I'll park the car down about half a block," Fay suggested. "And wait there."

Kirk accompanied Paul back into the lobby and sat down to wait while Paul went upstairs. What a fool he had been! That crazy Fay was always getting things mixed up!

At that moment, a girl came through the street door. Lavonne! Kirk leaped up.

"Lavonne — sweetheart — I thought . . ."

"Kirk!" She was in his arms. "Have—have you seen Virginia?"

COUNT DENIES HE MUTILATED SELF FOR CASH

PORTLAND, Ore., July 26—UP—"Count" George Hay du Barry didn't shoot off his own hands to collect insurance; he is the victim of a plot by false informers determined to extract money from him or the insurance company, it was charged in court today.

Counsel for the man who claims to be a descendant of Countess Jeanne Becu Du Barry, favorite of King Louis XV, and of the American Secretary of State John Hay, ruthlessly cross examined W. C. Hemdrich, Curry county, Ore., deputy sheriff and star witness for the Aetna Insurance Company.

Hemdrich is a former employe of Du Barry in Gold Beach, Ore., mining. He testified that Du Barry approached him several times, proposing that he aid him in self mutilation to collect on insurance policies. He swore that Du Barry, Seattle piano dealer, was in financial trouble and had not paid him for work in the mine.

Attorney J. C. Kendall, for Du Barry, intimated in questioning Hemdrich that the deputy sheriff invented the story of the self mutilation plot to get money from insurance companies.

"Didn't you tell a man named Jack Duthie at Gold Beach in October, 1933, that Du Barry owed you money and that you'd make him pay or you'd get the money from the insurance companies?" Kendall asked.

"I never said such a thing," replied Hemdrich.

"Didn't you demand $5,000 from Du Barry in the lobby of the Calhoun Hotel in Seattle in December, 1933, and threaten him with a gun, and didn't you reduce your demands to $500?"

"No, I did not."

ALSO THE FIREMAN

The answer is yes. Jack Barry, who once in the days of his youth and before he knew better, was a "printer's devil" in my shop, related a couple of tales to me over the phone the other night. Jack now is next to the top in the fire department and is one of the boys who have built up the enviable reputation enjoyed by the department that hardly before an alarm is sounded the fire is out.

During the current month the engine was coming down the street one day at top speed on its way to a possible conflagration. The siren incidentally, as is usual on such occasions, was doing its full vocal duty. Ahead of the engine was an auto with three girls in it. Did they get out of the way? They "stepped on it," kept just in front of the engine and amidst giggles waved to the men on the engine. Jack was "burned up" and his blood pressure did not abate any, when within the next couple of days while on a similar errand an auto made a turn directly in front of the engine.

The promise to tell me more of such incidents some day when it is convenient for us to get together is assurance that I will in the future have something really readable in this column.

ST. SURE SAYS BUSSES HERE ARE PAYING

Speaking before the Richmond Rotary Club yesterday, William P. St. Sure, vice president of the Key System, declared that the Richmond-Oakland bus line is the best paying unit of the system and that further increase in service may be hoped for if that condition is maintained.

St. Sure declared that when the old street car system was operated locally, the Richmond line was "in the red."

St. Sure, who was introduced by Carl Alexander, chairman of the day, discussed many of the transportation problems that have arisen with the new bay bridge.

The Key and Espee will operate separate services over the bridge as will the Sacramento Short Line. Bus lines will be run by the Santa Fe and the Greyhound busses. The Key may also operate a bus line but practically all of the mass transportation will be by rail. He said that certain property owners in San Francisco are working against the popularizing of the bridge and that whether the bridge becomes an asset or a liability to the eastbay depends upon the manner in which the bridge is used and fares kept down.

St. Sure advised that all interested get a copy of the report of the transportation committee of the Oakland chamber of commerce which has gathered data all over the country where new bridges have arisen in metropolitan communities.

"Seven Year Itch" May Be Considered a Joke by Most, But Not by a Sufferer

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE so-called "seven year itch" has long been the subject of amusement and jokes, but I can assure you that it is no joke to the possessor of the itch mite. The itch has always been associated with the idea of poverty and uncleanliness, but the itch mite is no respector of persons and the rich and extremely cleanly are subject to this affliction. Cleanliness and attention prevent the multiplication of the mite and the duration of its existence.

DR. CHRISMAN

The horse, cow, cat, dog, and sheep are subject to itch and it can be readily transmitted to the human. Itch is extremely contagious and may be contracted in many ways. The most common source is by sleeping with or in the bed of one who has it and handling clothes, towels, or some intimate object, and even by the friendly handshake.

It is easy to catch and difficult to get rid of, after being firmly established. The itch mite is a small whitish animal which can be seen with the naked eye and under a magnifying glass, it looks like a small turtle with four pairs of legs and little cutting instruments on the front part of the head.

Many skin diseases resemble itch and a diagnosis of itch should not be made till you have seen the mite. As with so many of the parasites, the female is the guilty member of the family. She is the one who burrows under the skin and does the devilish work. The male lives long enough to mate with her and then crawls off and dies.

The Way It's Done

After fertilization, the female attaches herself to your skin and with her cutting instruments bores under the outer skin and proceeds forward parallel with the surface. Her back is studded with bristles which point backward so she cannot turn around or back out of her tunnel and must go forward.

As she proceeds she lays her eggs, one or two at a time. The eggs are much larger than the mite, and she rests after laying an egg. She proceeds about one-tenth inch a day and may live in her tunnel for a month or more, so as many as twenty eggs have been found in a tunnel.

The itching and burning is caused by this tunneling, and the more you scratch the more she tunnels. She advances faster when everything is warm and quiet. That is the reason you are in more distress while in bed.

The mite prefers soft moist skin for her operations, consequently she attaches herself to the soft skin between the toes and fingers and to other parts where folds in the skin produce moisture and soft tissue.

The egg hatches in three days and the new mite works its way out of the tunnel. It crawls around on the skin and attaches itself to the clothing till it gets ready to start burrowing. So, in trying to kill them, you must not only destroy those in the skin tunnels, but also those in the clothing and bedding.

Easy To Kill

Fortunately the itch mite is rather easily killed, when you get to it. When the patient has been careless and allowed the trouble to progress for a long period they have spread all over the body, on the back, under the arm pits, and all places that are hard to reach. Sulphur or Balsam of Peru spell death to the mite, but it must reach them wherever they are.

Because some are tunneling, and some wandering over the skin surface, and some hiding in the clothing, diligence and persistence in the warfare are necessary.

The treatment should begin with a hot bath, with the use of plenty of soap. A rough cloth or brush is needed to remove the surface scabs and scales and open the tunnels. Sulphur ointment should be rubbed vigorously into the skin of the whole body. Sulphur is very irritating to some skins and only a small portion should be treated till you determine how irritating it is. If too unpleasant, it may be weakened with the addition of Balsam of Peru or some bland ointment.

This should be rubbed into the skin night and morning for two or three days, then take another hot bath with plenty of soap. After this, the underwear should be changed as well as the bed clothing. There will be considerable irritation of the skin for several days as a result of the treatment. Linens should be boiled and woolen clothing baked, repeating in a week if any itch persists.

May Yohe Jinxed By Hope Diamond

By TALBOT LAKE

FOR a lurid life story it is only necessary to think of May Yohe, who once owned the enormous, and fateful, Hope diamond. Only a couple of weeks ago the newspapers had it that May was dying by the minute from a serious illness, but back she came again with a sudden recovery that left everybody, including the doctors, in admiring amazement.

Bouncing back again has been a favorite trick of the beautiful actress of the Nineties, who has had more ups and downs than a roller coaster. She went from a childhood in Pennsylvania, as the daughter of a small town dresssmaker, to the stage of the Casino Theater in New York, where she advanced from the back row to the front by means of her increasing beauty and a rich, contralto voice.

Her stage success mounted up, and eventually she was playing in London. Here she captivated and married Lord Francis Hope. Sunday newspaper editors immediately said the Hope family's baleful diamond would put the jinx on her. Strangely enough, subsequent happenings seemed to bear this out.

Around the turn of the century the Yohe situation was this: Money, social position, jewels, and Lord Hope were gone. She was unhappily married to Capt. Putnam Bradlee Strong, divorced again, and drifted as a singer to the Barbary Coast. During the war she became a nurse in Africa, met and became the wife of Capt. John Smuts, nephew of Gen. Smuts.

They became stranded in the Orient, but finally made their way to Seattle, where he worked in a shipyard and she had to be satisfied as a scrubwoman. She tried afterward to make a stage comeback several times, but with no great success. Then Capt. Smuts shot himself, explaining he did it out of remorse for ill-treatment of his wife. He did not die, however, and following his recovery the curse of the diamond appeared to lift.

At present they are said to be living happily, if not lavishly, in a neat little cottage in a Boston suburb.

Guide to Charm

Hair Can Be Nice Without Undue Work

By JACQUELINE HUNT

SUMMER is no time to spend precious hours under a drier waiting for a brand new fingerwave to set. There are too many things to do and see. Swimming, rides in a breezy open car, picnics in cool, shady spots, tennis — dozens of things. Of course, you know how much a charming topknot will appeal to your boyfriend, but you can have it without losing any sleep or dates either.

First you should follow grandmother's old recipe of "fifty strokes with a hairbrush every night." You will be surprised how manageable your hair will be after the first two or three days of faithful brushing. This applies whether you have recently had a new permanent wave or not.

Next you should select one or more coiffures that are becoming and that you can arrange yourself. If your permanent is a thing of the past, or if you look more attractive and different from the crowd with your hair straight, then wear it straight. It is surprising how many girls who would be perfectly stunning with straight hair, lose so much time finding it out.

MISS HUNT

Long hair is both youthful and dignified when drawn back into a simple knot at the back of the neck. A braid, coronet-fashion across the top of your head, will hold your hair in place and keep it neat and shining for hours.

If you prefer your hair short but straight—or nearly straight—there are two styles that will appeal to many of you. One is a Dutch bob, that is most charming for the oval faced girl with pretty regular features. Part your hair in the middle and keep it clean and shining and fluffy by careful shampoos and lots of brushing. Wear it the length that is most becoming from the tips of your ears to your shoulders, but train the ends to turn under slightly. A few bangs, parted and curled slightly to resemble the "spit curls" so popular ten years ago belong with this coiffure.

The other coiffure also calls for a center part, although a high side part will do. Brush your hair until it is shiny and smooth. Cut a few hairs on each side of the part a bit shorter and curl the ends with a curler or iron. Draw them back and fasten with twin clips or barrets over each temple. Draw the rest of the hair behind your ears, and make a few more curls along your neckline in the back.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have dark pouches under my eyes and have had them for several years. have had my eyes examined recently and found that I must wear glasses for reading and close work, but this does not improve the dark circles. I get plenty of sleep. What causes them?—Mrs. G. U."

You would be wise to go back to your oculist and ask him about the pouches. It is possible that the glasses are not doing their work adequately or that you do not wear them as much as you should. If there is any physical ailment you should try to clear that up too. Spend as much time as you can in the fresh air and try to sleep an hour longer each night and see if the dark circles do not improve.

QUESTION: "Please give me a good exercise for reducing my hips. I am small and slender except for my hips, which seem enormous.—K. D."

Try this exercise. It is more fun if you can get a friend to join you. Stand on your tiptoes, with your hands on your hips, back straight and head up. Now squat down, raise and repeat ten times.

This one is more fun. Get a medicine ball and you and your friend sit on the floor facing each other but about ten feet apart. Sit with your legs on the floor, feet apart, leaning back slightly. The object is to toss the ball from one person to another. Catch it, keeping your position, then lift it over your head, fall back and touch the floor with it. Straighten up, using the muscles of the abdomen and hips and toss the ball to your partner. Keep up this game for fifteen minutes or more.

Dinah Turban Hat Style Reported Newest Paris Hit

By IRENE VAIL

NEW YORK — The newest looking hat in Paris, according to first-hand information, is one worn by Mrs. Reginald Fellowes. It is a Dinah turban like that associated with a negro mammy, but it is in black mat jersey with knotted ends at front, and is from Schiaparelli. Small hats continue to lead in Paris despite the warm weather, including Suzy's "Amazon" shape, which is trimmed with ostrich, and Reboux's flower toque. There are also numerous berets worn.

Italian Renaissance colors are important in most fabric showings, including light and dark reds influenced by yellow or violet and also bluish or grayish greens and soft madonna blues.

One of the pleasantest headnotes for in-between-season as evidenced by advance imports which reflect autumn tendencies is the "half mat."

This silhouette is sponsored by several creators, but launched by Reboux in her flower visor model. It is a cuff-turban with a bonnet suggestion, which is cut squarely off across the top of the head, leaving the entire back exposed. Frequently there is a semi-stitched narrow bandeau to hold it on securely. The half hat is a silhouette which has already been developed in felt, fabrics and flat furs by a New York milliner. With so much talk of ostrich in the air, for more formal occasions, the back of the hat could be filled in by curled or uncurled ostrich feathers.

While fabric hats are being worn, there is less inclination than formerly to choose a hat made of the fabric of the costume worn. Hats themselves are often of two or more colors. Felts, even tailored ones, have contrasting bands, and this idea is apt to follow through in hats of diverse kinds. There is however, always a place and a time for the all-black hat or the all-white one.

The addition of a mesh veil—chenille dotted or otherwise—makes a white hat all over. This little trick is being practiced everywhere just now. While the veils usually are drawn just over the edge, there is a back movement prophesied by those who saw a profile hat worn at Longchamps where French fashionables are making fashion history. This hat, brim rolling slightly, had a white dotted veil softly draped around the shallow crown and gathered into the back where it hung to the shoulder. If that doesn't give you something to think about, I've missed my guess.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Please let me know where the flower girls should be in the bridal procession?—D. S."

Answer: They may either precede the bridal procession or walk between the maid of honor and the bride.

QUESTION: "Most books of etiquette say that the bride walks to the altar on the arm of her father. As a prospective bride, I should like to find out which arm she takes. Thanking you for this information.—Ida B."

ANSWER: The bride leans on her father's right arm. In other words he is at her left. The bride carries her bouquet in her right arm.

QUESTION: "Is it necessary for a man to raise his hat when leaving a group of men?"—B. B.

ANSWER: If all the men in the group are his intimate friends, he may omit this gesture.

LET'S HAVE A PICNIC

Going on a picnic? If you are, you may gain an inspiration from this array of some of the necessary food and beverage items. There are the hamper, sufficient knives, forks, spoons, cups, sugar, salt and pepper and, last but not least, enough sandwiches and all the other eatables to make your picnic lunch complete.

As to the beverage, those who prefer coffee may arrange to take this along in a thermos bottle or jug, or prepare it at your picnic site. If a cold beverage is desired, bottled beer or lemonade will answer the purpose.

MODERN WOMEN

Those Who Have Gone on Cruises Usually Never Lose Wanderlust

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

THE cruise season is upon us. Cruising has become one of the most popular of vacation pastimes and one of the most enjoyable. It is not only the tourist who is going to see strange sights, believe me, for nothing is ever stranger than Mr. and Mrs. Provincial on tour.

Cruising is vacationing made easy, for there is always some one appointed to do all the things for the traveler that she hates to do for herself. Women are never so dependent on men as when they are turned adrift in strange places and are forced to fend for themselves.

MRS. MARTIN

Men really do bear the brunt of the travelers' problems and all of the burdens. They are the ticket-getting, reservation-making, trunk-checking sex and are never more than one jump away from responsibility. Your lady traveler is usually routed through, either by an agency or an individual. Her baggage and reservations are attended to for her and she is left pleasantly free to do as she sees fit en route.

There is no earthly reason why a girl, or woman, alone should not set out to see the world from the deck of a cruising ship, or should pass up the adventures to be found in any port of call.

What a Comparison!

As compared to the comforts and benefits of a summer boarding house—well, what's the use? A lack of congenial companions becomes a tragedy to those who elect to remain static during their holiday, but to the rover who loves to watch the changing panorama and who revels in strange sights, sounds and smells, companionship is incidental. There's so much to interest her that it is easy to forget all about being alone—if she succeeds in remaining alone, which is very doubtful.

There is no detachment more complete than that of finding oneself at sea. It's an experience of suspended life, of being between two worlds—or being between a past which cannot reach you and a future incapable of casting a shadow. One lives in a present curiously devoid of responsibilities, and has time to catch up with whatever has been elusive or eluding.

There are many who do not find traveling anything but a bore or a hardship, but even such as these must admit that cruise masters have done wonders in smoothing the path.

If your vacation is ahead and you have no particular yen for any one resort, camp or farm, do consider what the opportunities are for seeing some part of the world. There are cruises to practically everywhere and for all sorts of variations of time. They offer novelty and a new sort of thrill, as well as complete change and what we are pleased to call rest.

Men Return Exhausted

How many who go on vacations really return anything but physically exhausted from the routine they have followed? They are rested in the sense that they are freed of the shackles that bind them to desk or counter.

Often it isn't a rest one needs at all, but a complete change, and this is usually to be found in a round of gayety. Women and men who work hard are not often given to playing hard too, so that obviously the best type of vacation for them is one in which a good deal of play and a great deal of mental stimulation are crowded.

It's quite possible they have had no lack of sleep, and therefore have no particular need for more. It's always a luxury to be able to lie abed later in the morning than on working days, but not many adults—and certainly no children—get any particular kick out of the privilege of being able to go to bed earlier than usual.

Not all of us know the meaning of wanderlust. Those who feel no tug at the ties that bind when a steamer puts out to sea or a train pulls out of a station can have no conception of the longing even the truly contented feel when they know themselves to be among those that must go ashore at the final gong.

It's easier and cheaper to see the world, or at least some portion of it, than many suppose. Why not think about the complete change, plus a bit of adventure?

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

You and Your Child

Using Child's Emotions Is Selfish Trick

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

MOTHER and a friend were taking a walk with little Dorothy. The child walked between the two adults, holding onto the hand of the friend, of whom she is very fond. High over her head the grown-ups were talking but Dorothy did not know what they were saying. Nor was she at all interested. She was too busy watching the sights.

MRS. GOWARD

The friend indicated in pantomime that she thought Dorothy was a perfect angel. Mother seemed pleased and observed: "She is very well behaved today." Then a happy thought struck mother. She stage-whispered and motioned for the friend to continue walking with Dorothy while she herself remained behind. She looked mischievous and expectant, like an impish child playing a trick.

At first the friend did not understand, but as she saw no harm in mother's proposal she continued marching ahead with Dorothy, hand-in-hand. They took about six steps together. Then Dorothy became panicky. Her mother was gone from her side. She looked back, but mother was nowhere in sight. (She was hiding behind a tree.) Dorothy began to bawl for her mother. Mother came rushing to her side and an affectionate reunion took place. This time Dorothy clung to her mother's hand and not the friend's, as they continued their walk.

Many otherwise intelligent mothers play upon their children's emotions this way. The motive, of course, is a selfish one. The mother wants to show another, or wishes to prove for her own satisfaction, that her child loves her.

Another favorite trick is for a mother to feign grief or pain and arouse a sympathetic response in a young child. The mother hides her face and pretends to cry. If you have done it yourself, do not do it again. Punish a child if necessary, but don't let that punishment be: "See how badly I feel when you are naughty!"

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

IMPEACHMENT IN OKLAHOMA STIRS FIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 26—UP—Governor E. W. Marland brought into the open tonight talk current in Oklahoma that efforts would be made to impeach him.

He charged utilities and oil interests with plotting his impeachment because of increased income and gross oil production taxes passed since his administration began in January.

Like his predecessor, William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, Marland took the fight to the "impeachocrats."

"Let's drag this thing out in the open," the governor cried, furiously, in a speech at a party rally. "We're going to fight this thing out in the open, not in a whispering campaign!"

[illegible], former oil millionaire, chose a meeting of State Democratic women leaders as the occasion for turning the light on the impeachment talk. He spoke later, in a hotel coffee shop where the women had gathered to plan for the 1936 Democratic campaign.

Various party dignitaries and high State officials were there. But only newspapermen had any hint of what was coming.

The governor was understood to have reached a decision today to end the "whispering" and if there is to be a fight on him, to have it in the open and as quickly as possible.

His opponents have criticized his "New Deal for Oklahoma" program as impractical, visionary and back-breaking in cost. Marland, a novice in politics, had trouble with the State House, composed largely of youthful first-term members, in the Spring legislative session.

The Speaker Leon (Red) Phillips defied him, killed much of his program.

Impeachment talk soon was heard in legislative circles and among political observers.

One Oklahoma governor, Henry S. Johnston, was removed on impeachment charges alleging incompetency.

If Marland were impeached, J. E. Perry, Stillwater banker who is lieutenant-governor, would succeed him. He is a novice in politics and government, like Marland.

WOMAN WILL FILE SUIT IN ARREST

tremely bitter in denouncing the action of sheriff's officers who questioned the woman about the murder of her husband. Hoey declared the officers had no legal right to take the woman from the Contra Costa county jail to Berkeley for questioning by means of the lie detector. The machine proved of no avail in clearing up the murder mystery.

FREED ON BAIL

Mrs. Ferrando was freed on $2,000 bond late yesterday afternoon. Judge T. D. Johnston is scheduled to hear her petition for a writ of habeas corpus at Martinez tomorrow.

Mrs. Ferrando was arrested a week ago on the complaint of Lombardo, with whom she had been friendly both before and after her marriage to Ferrando.

Lombardo claimed that she stole $35 from him when she visited his home here.

WAS GRILLED

She was questioned by Sheriff John A. Miller and deputies as to her knowledge of the fatal shooting of her husband whose body was found March 4 in a truck, his pockets rifled. Taken to Berkeley she was given a lie detector test.

The woman then charged that Lombardo had the key to her husband's truck in his possession. Lombardo denied the allegation and he, too, was examined by the lie detector but due to the fact he suffered from high blood pressure and heart trouble, the examination was unsuccessful.

Bank Bill Is Passed By Senate

lows the bankers to have considerable say on monetary policies.

The House bill provides that the Federal Reserve Board shall use its open market operations—involving the buying and selling of government securities to "promote conditions conductive of business stability and to mitigate by its influence unstabilizing fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices and unemployment."

The Senate changed that to "accommodate commerce and business with regard to the general credit situation of the country."

FIGHT PREDICTED

In the conference between House and Senate, two men who often have been adversaries will be facing each other across a table again. They are Glass and Chairman Henry B. Steagall of the House banking committee.

Each is expected to fight hard for his version of the bill.

Under the Senate bill the membership of the Federal Reserve Board would be increased from six to seven and the Secretary of the Treasury and Comptroller of the Currency would be eliminated as ex-officio members.

your fellows and of the government, and will not, except when required in the due course of judicial proceedings, disclose the testimony of any witness examined before you, nor anything which you or any other grand juror may have said, nor the manner in which you or any other grand juror may have voted on any matter before you. You will present no person through malice, hatred, or ill-will, nor leave any unpresented through fear, favor, or affection, or for any reward, or the promise of hope thereof; but in all your presentments you will present the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, according to the best of your skill and understanding. (Section 903 Penal Code).

BIAS BANNED

"Before considering a charge against any person, the foreman of the grand jury shall state to those present the matter to be considered and the person to be charged with an offense in connection therewith, and direct any member of the grand jury who has a state of mind in reference to the case or to either party which will prevent him from acting impartially and without prejudice to the substantial rights of the party to retire. Any violation of this section by the foreman or any member of the grand jury is punishable by the court as a contempt. (Section 907, Penal Code).

CAN ASK ADVICE

"The grand jury may, at all times, ask the advice of the court or the judge thereof, or of the district attorney; but unless such advice is asked, the judge of the court must not be present during the sessions of the grand jury. The district attorney of the county may at all times appear before the grand jury for the purpose of giving information or advice relative to any matter cognizable by them, and may interrogate witnesses before them whenever he thinks it necessary, except that when a charge against or involving the district attorney, or assistant district attorney, or deputy district attorney, or anyone employed by or connected with the office of the district attorney, is being investigated by the grand jury, such district attorney, or assistant district attorney, or deputy district attorney, or either or any of them, shall not be allowed to be present before such grand jury when such charge is being investigated, in an official capacity but only as a witness, and he shall only be present while a witness and after his appearance as such witness must leave the place where the said grand jury is holding its session. The attorney general is empowered when requested so to do by the grand jury of any county or city and county, to employ special counsel and special investigators, whose duty it shall be to investigate and present the evidence in such investigation to the said grand jury of such county or city and county. (Section 925, Penal Code).

"As I have before stated, the District Attorney is the legal adviser of the grand jury and you should consult him before embarking on any investigation except in a case where the District Attorney or his office is involved. It requires an affirmative vote of twelve grand jurors in order to bring an indictment and before any of you should vote for an indictment, you should be satisfied from the instructions that I have given you that that is the proper thing to do.

NO OUTSIDE ADVICE

"You should not receive any advice or instructions, without consent of the Court, from any person except the Court and the District Attorney.

POLITICS TABOO

"You are furtehr instructed that it is not the province of the grand jury to do what we ordinarily term "politics". Your duty is an important and serious one and you should enter into your office with that idea in mind.

"Criminal matters that can be easily handled by the district attorney through a preliminary examination before a committing magistrate should not occupy your attention.

"Should you employ, as you must, an accountant to audit the books of the county, do not be swayed in your employment by political preference. Your employment of an expert must be approved by the Court and his compensation must be approved by the Court.

MUST BE ECONOMICAL

"There has been at various times in the past, criticism of grand jurors by reason of the fact that great expense has been incurred. It is your duty to be economical and no greater number of meetings should be held than are necessary. You are not, however, to construe this as any inclination upon the part of the Court that you are not to investigate matters that may come to your attention.

ON OWN INITIATIVE

"I further instruct you that this grand jury should act upon its own initiative and you should not, unless you feel it is right and proper, pursue an investigation that has been previously made by some previous grand jury. Each grand jury is responsible for its own actions, and is not bound by the actions of any previous or subsequent grand jury."

TO MEET AUG. 9th

The jury is to meet the night of August 9, when committees for the year will be arranged.

SPONSORS ARE TO PAY PART ALL PROJECTS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26—Regulations requiring 20 percent average participation by sponsors in the cost of projects under the new federal works program will apply to all sponsoring branches of government without exception, Frank Y. McLaughlin, Works Progress Administrator for California affirmed today.

McLaughlin set at rest rumors that the regulations will be lightened in favor of any county, large or small, or city or district subdivision of government.

The 20 percent requirement is based upon the fact that unless this is done, the California WPA cannot spread available funds to provide employment for all entitled to it under the program, McLaughlin said.

"We have been instructed to place in employment heads of families the single persons who were on relief during May and who are able to work. For this purpose the California WPA has been allocated $20,000,000, the amount estimated as needed to care for 192,500 cases in the State. This number of cases constitutes five percent of the national load, whereas California actually has about seven percent of the national relief load.

"Of the funds allocated, $71,000,000 has been earmarked by Washington to finance projects sponsored by various federal agencies of government, which probably will care for 38,500 cases. This leaves available $131,000,000 to care for the remaining 154,000 or more cases.

"The federal government has instructed that we design projects on a basis permitting payment of $1,020 per man year. Division of $131,000,000 by 154,000 gives the result of $850 per man year.

"Therefore, in order to provide employment for all entitled to it under the program and at wages specified by the federal government it is necessary that another $170 additional per man year be provided. We have no other recourse than to look to sponsoring agencies for contributions."

McLaughlin pointed out that sponsors may list equipment, material and supervision as contributions an average of 20 percent contribution by a single sponsor or a number of projects by a group of sponsors desiring to pool their projects will be acceptable.

REPRIEVE IS GRANTED TO DOOMED MAN

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, July 26—UP—Ellis J. Latona, 43, smiled at guards as he resumed his place in San Quentin's death row tonight, saved by a last-minute reprieve from hanging.

"I'll never believe I'm going to hang until I hear the rope crack," he had told them.

Today, when he was scheduled to mount the 13 steps of the prison gallows at 10 a. m. Governor Frank F. Merriam telegraphed Warden James Holohan that he had issued a reprieve to Latona, extending the date of execution to August 30.

In Los Angeles, Latona's attorney Kirkland I. Perky, attributed the reprieve to the fact that Latona had not been in court when the death sentence was pronounced on him for the second time.

Latona was convicted of murdering Jose Flores, former Arizona convict then attempting to pass the body as that of his brother in an effort to collect $3,000 insurance. His case was appealed, and he was re-sentenced after the Supreme Court had affirmd his conviction.

To Latona's 10-year-old son, Joe, and his wife the reprieve was an act of mercy granted after they had pleaded with Governor Merriam to save Latona from the gallows.

"I went to see Governor Merriam with my mother, and we asked him not to let them hang my daddy. I've just kept thinking and thinking that the governor will save him," Joe told the San Quentin guards when he saw his father, presumably for the last time, Wednesday.

Appeals have saved Latona from the gallows for 22 months.

Rev. Hubert Doran, pastor of the Wesley Methodist church here, who has been acting as religious adviser for Latona, personally pleaded with Governor Merriam to commute Latona's sentence.

Rev. Doran expressed belief that the man is innocent of the crime of which he is accused.

The local pastor declared that Latona was overjoyed at the news, but said that he had always felt that someone would intervene and halt the execution.

good offices in Addis Ababa to arrange direct Italo-Ethiopian discussions of economic concessions to Italy. He emphasized Britain would support any reasonable economic claims in Ethiopia. But Mussolini refused to renounce his objective—political annexation.

Britain now is seeking assurances from Mussolini that Italy will not open hostilities against Ethiopia as long as Anglo-Franco-Italian diplomatic negotiations continue.

LEAGUE TO MEET

Meanwhile, she hopes for definite League action when the Council convenes next week.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Captain R. Anthony Eden secretary for League affairs, believed it "better for the League to die like a lion than live as a lamb."

Eden will be Britain's delegate to the Council. When he rises he is expected to give better than mere lip service to League principles. He is expected to insist upon League investigation of Ethiopia's rights as a sovereign nation and member of the League. He will recognie, also, that Italy's complaints against Ethiopia should be investigated.

Mussolini's continued refusal to renounce political annexation was regarded as discouraging here, but with the League Council meeting next week hope that war may be averted survived.
